

OCA
86-0290

CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE AGENCY

~~OCA~~
pubs

1 February 1986

NOTE FOR: William Ball
Assistant Secretary for Legislative and Intergovernmental Affairs
Department of State

FROM: Director, Office of Congressional Affairs

Will

Most Southerners are history buffs and you are probably no exception. Apart from a fascinating account of where intelligence began for Americans, you will also see that we were having trouble with Congress even then. By the way, please note that among our more capable operations officers in those days are included Jefferson and Livingston. Ben Franklin got good marks as Chief of Station in Paris, and the Adams brothers, John and Samuel, showed a flare for propaganda.

David D. Gries

STAT

Distribution:

Original - Addressee w/att.
1 - D/OCA Chrono w/att.
① - OLL Subject w/att.
1 - OLL Chrono w/o att.
D/OCA:DDG:mlg (1 Feb 1986)

Intelligence in the War of Independence